LION's Logistics Division Announces the Opening of Pendergrass Distribution Center

DAYTON, OHIO — LVI, the military third-party logistics division of LION, announces the opening of its new warehouse in Pendergrass, Ga. The Pendergrass U.S. Army Third Party Logistics Distribution Center is the primary location for U.S. Army uniforms and associated clothing items under a contract with the Defense Logistics Agency Troop Support.

The 265,000-sq. ft. facility is presently staffed by 50 employees with an anticipated expansion to 75 employees. The objective of LVI's Pendergrass facility is to ensure the mission-critical readiness of America's warfighters with the efficient and effective management and supply of clothing items to the U.S. Army. LVI distribution centers meet or exceed world-class standards as defined by the Warehouse Education and Research Council.

"Relocating our distribution center to Pendergrass could not have happened without the strong enduring relationship with Defense Logistics Agency Troop Support built over a decade of services, successes and mutual respect", said LION Chief Executive Officer Steve Schwartz. "Virtually every soldier in the U.S. Army will be provided a uniform that passes through this facility sometime during their service."

"In a state known for our active military installations, commitment to service personnel and their families, and advanced logistics infrastructure, Georgia is proud to be the new home of this LION distribution facility that will allow the company to better serve our U.S. Army personnel," said Chris Cumiskey, commissioner of the Georgia Department of Economic Development. "I join the Pendergrass community in celebrating the opening of this new distribution center, and look forward to the positive economic impact for this area."

The State of Georgia was chosen due to the existence of a trained warehouse operations labor force. Additionally, the Pendergrass area is geographically convenient for shipping to U.S. Army locations.
